I get such a thrill out of creating accessories and touches that really capture the essence of an event and bring additional meaning as well as guest interest. Scale is important - guests love precious pieces that surprise and delight.

It was a lively, beautiful and memorable Fall - the events were many, varied and successful.

October brought a gorgeous wedding weekend at Sleepy Hollow Country Club in New York, a 40th Anniversary celebration of Empire Loan Pawnbrokers, an inspirational Halloween-themed fundraising walk for Shriners Children's Boston, and a celebration of the successes and impact of Mass Audubon with their members and supporters. And that was just October. November featured an incredible wedding weekend celebrated with two very special families and their guests in the gorgeous Four Seasons Hotel Boston. While each event was so different, they all shared one very important aspect - my attention to every detail, both visual and operational. The settings were each unique and stunning.

awaiting art created by a precious population

A true life highlight - designing the Art of Kindness Wall for The Price Center - a day destination for adults of varied abilities. With an active and enriching art program and prolific participants, I was invited to create a 38-foot wide large format digital applique on a formerly blank wall to be the centerpiece of this active and inspirational building and for the individuals creating art there. These frames will serve to present these works of art in various formats in a formal and important way. I can't think of anything more meaningful.
